THE SNOW IMAGE. A CHILDISH MIRACLE.

BY NATHANIEL HAWTHOUNE. WITH ILLUSTRATIONS BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLORS. "The Snow Image" is, perhaps, the most exquisitely beautiful of all the minor sketches by the late immented Nathaniel Hawthorne. The present edition is handsomely illustrated with six designs in colors, and printed with elegance on heavy calendered paper. It is one of the most unique and attractive minor gift volumes of the season. Cloth extra, beveled boards, gilt sides.......Price, $150.

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD,

TOLD IN VEHSE BY R. H. STODDAED.

Sumptuously illustrated in colors by Alfred Fredericks. This little work is perhaps the finest specimen of color printing yet executed in America. The size corresponds with our well-known "Visit from St. Nicholas." It ranks altogether above ordinary pictorial books for children, and Mr. Stoddard has told the adventures of Riding Hood in verses that give a DONALD G. MITCHELL, author of "Revertes of a Bach new and exquisite charm to the story. The work is novel, elor," will begin in an early number a stary with the title of "Dr. Jonak."

THE PUBLIC LAW ON THE SUBJECT OF FREE HOMES, AND SUGGESTIONS FROM PRACTICAL FARMERS.

STHER WITH NUMEROUS SUCCESSVE. EXPERIENCES THERS WHO, THOUGH BEGINNING WITH LITTLE OR NOTH-ING, HAVE BECOME THE OWNERS OF AMPLE PARKS.

By the Author of "TEN ACRES ENOUGH." This work fills a gap in Agricultural Literature which has long been unsupplied. It points out a multitude of methods by which men in moderate circumstances may obtain farms, by which men in moderate circumstances may obtain farms, as well as the locations in which they are to be found. It is in fact a grouping together in the compass of a convenient bandbook, of facts, arguments and illustrations which could not be got at without extensive general reading, while it abounds with original matter which has never before been presented. The numerous class of persons now turning their attention to agriculture and new seeking for farms, will find in this volume bare information than they can d obtain in six mounts travel ever the country. It facts are available to both rich and poor, the softler and the speculator. It ranges over the whole Union, presenting to the reader, with impartial fainness, the claims which each location possess. No prospective buyer should purchase land before reading this volume.

"With a sincere graftined to his Christian brethren, and to his publishers in England and America, he desires to acknowledge the singular and entirely unexpected success which the little book has enjoyed. It has brought him kindly greetings and pleasant letters from the most distant and from some of the most obscure pertions or the earth. It has gained him some of the most obscure pertions or the earth. It has gained him some of the most empisies of friendships. In foreign travel if has opened his way to cottages and to castles; he found it on the shelves of Etch boys and in the rounts of grave fellows of the Universities. In Ireland he was presented with a carious series of imitations of Dreamland, some grave and some conditional and where he was not of his happiest recollections to incidents connected with the circulation of the Ballads, in several forms. To Count Taxo, the eminent poet and patriot of Northern Italy, he is indebted for the introduction of several of them to his countrymen, in spirited translations; and the Counte de Montalembert has unwrittingly connected a stants from one of them, with a book which will be ever memorable in the history of the French Empire."

Higgins's origin of the Bonnet.

As Love through Olympus was tripping one day, He stole to where Geres unconsciously lay.

And robbing her sheaf of its choicest gens, He tastefully platied their golden stems, Then borrowing from Flora the prettiest flowers, Jost such as she bears in her sunniest home, He wove them with sik through the gittering corn, Having previously bathed them in dews of the morn. Over all then he cast a light gassamer cloud, Their beauties to highten and not to enshroud; "And now to complete it," he joyonsly sings. "A piece from the rainbow I'll have for the strings," "Twas done. He fix quickly to Venus's bed. And placed his bright work on her beautiful head. So lovely she looked, all the gods stood amazed. Some smiled, some envied, but all of them praised. Then Joye, summoning Mercury quick to his side, "Come, name me this head-dress," he playfully cried, "Come, name me this head-dress," he playfully cried, "Come, name me this head-dress," he playfully cried, "Come, the Mercury pansed, then placed his hands on it, Saying: "By Jupiter's mandate I call thee a Bonnet." Thus was it that Olympus first witnessed the blands on it, Saying: a but the lower played have been remodeled and changed by capricious Fashion. Through all their varieties one lends the way.
